Teaser	If you want to join your German minor, unmarried child in Germany, you can obtain a residence permit for family reunification.
Volltext	You can join your German, underage, unmarried child if you come from a country outside the EU or the EEA, have custody of the German child and intend to exercise this custody. Personal custody includes the right and at the same time the duty to care for, educate and supervise the child and to determine its residence. A minor is a child who has not yet reached the age of 18. A person is single if he or she is not married and has not been married in the past; a person living in a registered civil partnership is also not single. If these requirements are met, you must be granted a residence permit. You can also join your child if you do not have custody of the child. The prerequisite is that you and your child are already living together as a family in Germany. A family relationship is assumed if the relatives maintain regular contact with each other that goes beyond mere visits. If the prerequisites are fulfilled, the authorities will decide on the granting of the residence permit on a discretionary basis. Under certain circumstances, the Aliens Department may oblige you to attend an integration course. This will then be noted on your residence permit.
