Teaser	Do you want to inform consumers about current fuel prices at filling stations? Then you can use real-time data from the Market Transparency Unit for Fuels under certain conditions.
Volltext	If you want to use real-time data on fuel prices at filling stations for consumer information, you must apply for approval as a provider of consumer information services (VID) from the Market Transparency Unit for Fuels. The Market Transparency Unit for Fuels collects real-time price data for the following fuels at public filling stations in Germany: • E5, • E10 and • diesel. As an authorized provider of VID, you can use the data for the purpose of consumer information. To be approved, you must meet certain requirements and provide credible evidence. You can submit your application for approval as a VID provider to the Market Transparency Unit for Fuels online or informally, preferably in writing (by post, fax or e-mail). As an authorized supplier of VID, you must inform the Market Transparency Unit for Fuels if • your business data changes. For example, if you have a new address or a different contact person is responsible.

- you give up your business activities as a VID.

If you fail to comply with the legal requirements, the Market Transparency Unit for Fuels may - depending on the circumstances of the individual case - refrain from passing on the data or withdraw your authorization.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

You must provide the MTS-K with the following information and documents as part of the application process:

- A brief introduction of yourself or your company for which you are applying for approval as a VID;
- a detailed description of your (planned) VID.

Questions may include:

- What is the medium or media of publication? What form will the presentation take? What is the mode of operation? How does the consumer retrieve the data? What information can consumers receive?

- Explanation,

- which target group your offer is intended to reach, whether and, if so, how your target group differs from the general public and under what conditions the service is also accessible to other target groups.

- Presentation,

- when you will start providing consumer information and how you guarantee that your offer will be permanently available from this date.

- Presentation of the geographical availability of your offer under the following aspects:

- Your offer includes all service stations nationwide. Your offer can be accessed nationwide.

- Presentation of how frequently you will update price data and how you will guarantee the necessary
