Teaser	If you as a measure provider carry out measures for participation in working life for people with disabilities, you must pay the social insurance contributions. The Employment Agency or the Job Center will reimburse you for the social insurance contributions upon application.
Volltext	The Federal Employment Agency is the rehabilitation provider if no other rehabilitation provider is responsible. This also applies to people with disabilities who are cared for by job centers. However, the special feature here is that there are shared responsibilities between the Employment Agency and the Job Center for the provision of services for occupational participation. If the Federal Employment Agency is not itself obligated to do so, you as the measure provider must register all participants for social insurance and pay social insurance contributions during the measure. Specifically, this involves contributions to <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• health insurance,</li> <li>• pension insurance,</li> <li>• unemployment insurance, if applicable, and</li> <li>• nursing care insurance.</li> </ul>

The employment agency or job center will reimburse you for the social insurance contributions paid, depending on your benefit responsibility.
