Teaser	If you are recognised as a displaced person or late repatriate, you should apply for clarification of your pension insurance account so that your insurance periods from abroad can be taken into account.
Volltext	When clarifying the pension insurance account, your contribution periods are assigned table values that correspond to what comparable insured persons in Germany have earned on average. This means that not only your contribution and employment periods but also, for example, credit periods completed in your country of origin can be credited to your pension insurance account. For contribution periods from 1950 onwards, the table values distinguish between qualification groups and economic sectors in order to determine your income as realistically as possible. The values are then generally reduced to 60 percent of the full value. This is primarily to adjust for insured persons who live in structurally weak areas and have earned significantly less. If you moved in after May 7, 1996, benefits cannot exceed a certain maximum value: The maximum value allowed is 25 earning points per beneficiary. This currently corresponds to a monthly gross old-age pension of EUR 826.25 in the old Länder and EUR 797.25 in the new Länder. If you are married or living in a consensual union, you will jointly receive pensions totalling a maximum of 40 earning points for your periods under the Foreign

Pensions Act. This currently corresponds to a gross old-age pension of EUR 1,322.00 per month in the old federal states and EUR 1275.60 in the new federal states. If you move, the amount of your monthly pension may change under certain circumstances.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

For the recognition of contribution and credit periods, all documents showing the type and duration of employment or its corresponding interruption are helpful. These are primarily the original insurance documents, for example:

- Work books,
- insurance books,
- identification books,
- employer's certificates and
- Credentials.

Additionally for the recognition of:

- Child-raising periods and child-counting periods: the birth certificates of the children,
- pension benefit periods: the pension certificate or a pension certificate,
- periods of military or alternative service: military service certificate.

As proof of the status as a late repatriate serves:

- the Spätaussiedlerbescheinigung or
- the expellees' identity card.

Note: On the basis of the documents submitted, the pension insurance institution decides in each individual case whether a contribution period has been made credible or even proven. For a proof, there must be no doubt as to the correctness of the alleged fact. If the contribution periods have only been made plausible, only five sixths of the values determined in accordance with the previous explanations can be taken into account.

Voraussetzungen

- You belong to the group of displaced persons or are a late repatriate.

- At the end of the account clarification process, you will receive an assessment notice from your pension insurance institution. This will list all the periods recorded for you.

Request clarification of your pension account in writing:

- In view of the complicated legal matter, you should submit the application for account clarification directly to one of the information and advice centres of the German Pension Insurance.
- Compile the necessary documents for the application and make an appointment.
- During the consultation, your application for account clarification will usually be recorded electronically and forwarded online.
- After your application has been examined, you will receive a separate assessment notice on the recognition of the insurance periods.

Please note: The assessment notice determines recognised periods according to the current legal situation. If the legislator changes the legal basis by the time pension payments actually start, this may mean that notices have to be adjusted to the new legal basis.
