Teaser	Are you a compulsory member of a professional pension scheme? Then you can apply for exemption from compulsory insurance in the statutory pension insurance scheme.
Volltext	Professional pension institutions, also known as pension schemes, are special systems of compulsory pension provision. They ensure that members of the liberal professions who are eligible to join a chamber receive compulsory old-age, invalidity and survivors' pensions. These include, for example <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Doctors,</li> <li>• lawyers and lawyers,</li> <li>• tax advisors and tax agents.</li> </ul> Exemption from compulsory insurance in the statutory pension insurance scheme in favor of this pension is only possible under certain conditions. You must be a compulsory member of a professional pension scheme and at the same time a compulsory member of a professional chamber due to your employment. Exemption is only possible in exceptional cases for other employment or activities subject to compulsory insurance. following conditions, all of which must be met:

- Exercise of a profession-specific occupation or activity in a chamber profession. These include Doctors, pharmacists, architects and architects, veterinary surgeons, dentists and dentists, notaries public, lawyers and attorneys, tax consultants and tax agents, auditors and certified public accountants, Associate members such as engineers and psychotherapists.
- Compulsory membership of a professional chamber. This only qualifies for exemption if the legal obligation to be a member of the professional chamber already existed for the relevant professional group before 01.01.1995.
- Compulsory membership of the relevant professional pension scheme
- Payment of income-related contributions to the professional pension scheme in accordance with the respective statutes
- Provision and dynamization of contribution-related benefits in the event of reduced earning capacity and old age as well as for surviving dependants by the occupational pension institution.
- Confirmation of the conditions for exemption under pension law by the highest administrative authority responsible for the occupational pension scheme.

The exemption may be extended to other employment or self-employment subject to compulsory insurance if

- this other employment or activity is limited in time due to its nature or by contract in advance and
- the occupational pension scheme also guarantees the acquisition of income-related pension entitlements during the exercise of this employment or activity.

This means that an existing exemption can only have an effect on other employment or self-employment if, in accordance with the articles of association, the same level of contributions must be paid to the occupational pension scheme as would have to be paid in the event of compulsory insurance in the statutory pension insurance scheme.
