Teaser	If you, as a public transport company, transport severely disabled people and their accompanying persons, guide, assistance or assistance dogs or objects carried free of charge on local public transport, you can apply for reimbursement of fare losses.
Volltext	The Federal Office of Administration (BVA) reimburses transport companies in local and long-distance transport for fare losses incurred for the transportation of severely disabled persons and their accompanying persons. You can receive a reimbursement for a completed calendar year. If you have received advance payments for the billed year, the corresponding amount will be taken into account. The Federal Office of Administration (BVA) will reimburse you the costs of local transport for the transportation of • severely disabled persons, • their accompanying persons, • their guide, assistance or assistance dogs and • objects carried by them, for example hand luggage, medical wheelchairs or other orthopaedic aids. The amount of the reimbursement depends on the respective percentage of your federal state or a reimbursement rate determined individually for you.
Erforderliche Unterlagen	You must submit the following with your application • Proof of the total fare income within the scope of the
