Volltext	You need an aeronautical radio certificate from the Federal Network Agency to carry out aeronautical radio services on the ground and in the air. You will receive the certificate after passing the aeronautical radio examination. To be admitted to the examination, you must submit an application to the Federal Network Agency. You can currently take the exam at 7 locations of the Federal Network Agency. The locations are Berlin, Bremen, Eschborn, Cologne, Reutlingen, Munich and Leipzig. There are various aviation radio certificates in Germany: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Restricted radiotelephony certificate II for the aeronautical radio service (BZF II): This certificate entitles you to use radiotelephony within the Federal Republic of Germany in German according to visual flight rules.</li> <li>• Restricted radiotelephony certificate I for the aeronautical radio service (BZF I): The certificate entitles you to radiotelephony in German and English according to visual flight rules.</li> <li>• Restricted radiotelephony certificate E for the aeronautical radio service (BZF E): The certificate entitles you to radiotelephony in English according to visual flight rules.</li> </ul>

Modul

Sachverhalt

- General radiotelephony certificate for the aeronautical radio service (AZF): The certificate entitles you to radiotelephony in German and English in accordance with visual and instrument flight rules.
- General radiotelephony certificate E for the aeronautical radio service (AZF E): The certificate entitles you to radiotelephony in English in accordance with visual and instrument flight rules.

You can only hold one aeronautical radio certificate at a time. As a rule, you must pass a full examination for this certificate. If you have not passed a full examination, you can take a retake examination. You will then have to take an additional examination for another aircraft radio certificate - for example, if you want to fly according to instrument flight rules in addition to visual flight rules.

For aeronautical radio in English (e.g. AZF E or BZF E), you must prove your knowledge of the English language (Language Proficiency - LP) in addition to the aeronautical radio certificate. To do this, you take the LP exam at the Federal Network Agency. You can also take the examination for your aeronautical radio certificate as part of a pilot examination. If you have already passed the theoretical examination of a state aviation authority, you can also register for the practical examination to obtain an aeronautical radio certificate. To do this, you will need a certificate from the state aviation authority confirming that you have passed the theoretical examination.

Verfahrensablauf

You can apply for admission to the flight radio exam online or by post or e-mail.

You always need an examination date. Arrange an examination appointment at a Federal Network Agency location. This can be done by telephone, e-mail or on site. If you do not arrange an examination appointment, the selected examination center will contact you with a proposed date.

Pay the application fee once the examination date has been confirmed by the Federal Network Agency.

Online application

- Call up the online application on the federal portal. This will guide you step by step through the necessary information, which you can enter electronically.
- Upload the required documents as a file and submit the application.
- The Federal Network Agency will send you the approval for the examination and the time and place of the examination by post or e-mail.
- You will receive the result of the test directly on site.
- After a successful examination, you will receive the certificate directly on site.
- If you fail the exam, you can repeat it once. You only
