Sachverhalt

If the general benefits are not sufficient to cover your support needs, you can receive the following special or supplementary supports:

- rehabilitation-specific vocational preparation training measures
- disability-specific basic training
- rehabilitation-specific training measures
- rehabilitation-specific continuing education measures
- Individual in-company qualification within the framework of supported employment
- Initial training and vocational training in workshops for people with disabilities or with other service providers
- Budget for training
- Placement support or vocational guidance by integration specialist services
- Individual case support such as technical work aids, aids, work assistance
- Other assistance, support for participation

What comes into question for you depends, among other things,

- which of the respective services is most suitable for you and your individual situation in order to improving your chances of successfully finding vocational training or a job, or to secure your existing training relationship or employment relationship,
- what personal inclinations you have and how you can use them in your professional life,
- which activities you would like to do and are able to do
- how the training and job market is currently developing and
- whether you meet the respective eligibility requirements.

In order to be eligible for benefits, you must submit an application for participation benefits in advance. You can submit this application to your advisor at the relevant employment agency or to your mediator at the job center. After receipt of the complete application documents, your application will be reviewed. Together with you, we will then discuss the

- If it is determined during the consultation that benefits for participation in working life are an option for you, the next steps will be discussed with you and the application will be made available either by printout or online. Your counselor or mediator will also discuss with you the necessary documents to be added to the application.

- For this purpose, existing documents on your (impending) health impairments will be evaluated and, if necessary, other specialized services will be consulted.
