Sachverhalt

In addition to the benefits already mentioned, you may also be entitled to:

- medical treatment
- payment of the costs of nursing care and institutional care as a result of your injury
- orthopaedic care
- welfare benefits (war victims' welfare)
- death and burial benefits

These benefits begin at the earliest when you leave the Bundeswehr.

In addition, compensation may be paid for material damage to clothing or items normally carried in the event of an accident during military service.

If a recognised military service injury causes exceptional wear and tear to clothing or linen, a monthly lump sum will be paid. If blindness is recognised as a military service injury, a monthly amount will be paid for the maintenance of a guide dog and as an allowance for external guidance.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

- If the application is submitted in writing: birth certificate or civil status data confirmed by a Bundeswehr office.
- If the application is submitted in person: identity card or passport.
- Certificate of military service
- Military medical certificate as well as all documents available for this medical condition, e.g. expert reports or findings.

Voraussetzungen

- You must be or have been a soldier in the service of the Bundeswehr.
- You must have suffered a health impairment which is the consequence of a military service injury, that is to say: You have suffered an injury to health in your capacity as a soldier as a result of a period of military service, an accident occurring during military service, or circumstances peculiar to military service.

Kosten

You don't have to pay anything.

Verfahrensablauf

- In the case of active soldiers, the procedure is usually initiated by the military doctor via a so-called military service injury sheet, who is first informed of the injury or illness.
- The Federal Office of Armed Forces Personnel Management then initiates investigations ex officio and provides information on the further progress of the procedure.
- If, because you have left the Bundeswehr, a military service injury does not become apparent until after the end of your military service, you must file an application. You must also always apply for any other post-deployment benefits.
- Download the appropriate application form from the Bundeswehr website.
- Print out the application, sign it and enclose all the necessary documents. You can find out which documents you need on the application form.
- Send your application to the address indicated on the form.
- The Federal Office of Personnel Management of the German Armed Forces will examine your application and will make further inquiries and inform you about the further procedure.

Bearbeitungsdauer

In about two thirds of the procedures, a decision is taken on the application within 1 year.

Frist

For continuous benefits, you must file your application within 1 year after your military service ends; applications filed later will be approved as of the 1st of the month of application.
