Volltext	Severely disabled persons who, as a result of their disability, are significantly impaired in their mobility in road traffic or are helpless or deaf are transported free of charge on local public transport. What is meant by local public transport in this context is defined in Section 147 (1) of the Ninth Book of the German Social Code (SGB IX); see "Legal basis". As a transport company, you can apply for reimbursement of fare losses resulting from the free transportation of severely disabled persons according to a percentage of the proven fare revenue. Reimbursement of fare losses is regularly made on a flat-rate basis according to a percentage set by the federal state. This is based on the ratio of severely disabled people entitled to free travel to the rest of the state's resident population. Note: If a company can prove by means of a traffic
