commercial enterprise.

According to case law, a commercial enterprise means

- an externally recognizable,
- permanently and professionally oriented,
- for the purpose of making a profit and
- activity carried out in an economic field.

The obligation to register applies to those companies whose registration is not already ensured by other statutory provisions. These are, in particular, certain legal entities under public law (e.g. corporations, institutions or foundations under public law). The management board obliged to register is therefore also to be understood as the body responsible for representation in accordance with the respective public law provisions, e.g. of the respective public enterprise.
