Teaser	Does your child have problems in everyday life or in his development? As a parent, you can't help your child on your own? Then a parenting assistant can support your child.
Volltext	A parenting assistant or a care assistant can help a child or adolescent in everyday life, in dealing with his parents and with social problems. It is an educational aid to which persons with custody are entitled if an education in the best interests of the child is not guaranteed and the assistance is appropriate and necessary for his or her development. The educational assistance or care assistant should support the child or adolescent in coping with developmental problems, as far as possible with the involvement of the social environment and promote his independence, taking into account the relationship to life to the family. Possible aids are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Conversations about problems, fears, and behavior</li> <li>• Help in dealing with stressful experiences</li> <li>• Support in solving problems with family, friends, teachers or others</li> <li>• Support in dealing with authorities</li> <li>• There are other aids for older young people: Support in finding work and housing</li> <li>• Help with detachment from parents</li> <li>• Help for independence</li> </ul> Note: In contrast to "socio-educational family assistance", educational assistance concentrates his
