Teaser	If you wish to partition off part of your property, in most cases the parcel must first be divided up in the real estate register. This is carried out as part of a boundary determination procedure.
Volltext	Each property is listed in the land register under a serial number. If you want to sell part of a plot of land, for example, this can only be carried out if a boundary determination procedure has been carried out beforehand. As part of this process, the new boundary points and boundaries are determined, marked off if required and then transferred to the property register. Once the boundary has been determined, the parcel is broken down in the real estate cadastre and a continuation notification is then issued by the Office for Land Management. carrying out the work will be happy to advise you. In particular, approval in accordance with § 7 of the Hessian Building Code is required for every division. The commissioned surveying office will check the legal requirements and can prepare the necessary documents if necessary.

Marking out:

The legislator gives property owners the freedom to mark the boundary points in the locality.

A boundary point is marked by means of a fixed, permanent and locally recognizable boundary marker. These boundary markers (e.g. boundary stones, plastic markers or metal bolts) serve to clarify the course of the boundary on site and can therefore also make a lasting contribution to border peace, for example to avoid disputes between neighbors about the course of the boundary.

You should therefore consider having the boundary points marked at the same time. The requested surveying office will be happy to advise you on this.

If you apply to have the boundary points marked at a later date, which in turn may only be carried out by an authorized surveying office in a new administrative procedure, the boundary points to be marked must always be determined first, which may result in additional costs.
