Teaser	Companies require an authorization for certain activities when handling animal by-products. You can find out more here.
Volltext	All residues from animals that are not suitable or intended for human consumption are animal by-products. These should be recycled and safely disposed of in such a way that neither human and animal health nor the environment are endangered. To this end, animal by-products are divided into three risk categories according to the degree of danger they pose to human and animal health, which must be processed or disposed of differently. There is an authorization requirement for certain activities when handling animal by-products. If you wish to carry out one of the following activities, you must first obtain a permit from the competent authority: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Processing of animal by-products by pressure sterilization, by processing methods or approved alternative methods</li> <li>• Disposal as waste by incineration of animal by-products and derived products, except in relation to plants or establishments holding an operating license in accordance with Directive 2000/76/EC</li> <li>• disposal or recovery of animal by-products and derived products, if they are waste, by co-incineration,</li> </ul>
