Teaser	The creditors' meeting is the supreme self-governing body in insolvency proceedings.
Volltext	The creditors' meeting is the highest self-governing body in insolvency proceedings. Important decisions can be made by the creditors at these meetings. For example, the creditors' meeting has the following tasks and rights: • Election of another person as insolvency administrator to replace the person who was previously appointed (Section 57 InsO), • Filing an application for the dismissal of the insolvency administrator (Section 59 InsO), • Application for the dismissal of a member of the creditors' committee (Section 70 InsO), • Requesting individual information and reports from the insolvency administrator on the respective state of affairs and management (§ 79 InsO), • Granting maintenance from the insolvency estate to the debtor and his family (§ 100 InsO), • Deciding on the continuation of the proceedings, in particular on the continuation or discontinuation of a company (§ 157 InsO), • Approval of particularly important legal acts of the insolvency administrator (§ 160 InsO), • instructing the insolvency administrator to draw up an insolvency plan (section 218 InsO), or • filing an application for the subsequent ordering or revocation of self-administration (sections 271 et seq. InsO). The most important stages in insolvency proceedings at which a creditors' meeting is usually convened, unless the proceedings are conducted in writing, are • Report meeting • Review meeting
