authorized representative or by the person who is required to have an ID card.

- The ID card holder receives a certificate stating that he/she is exempt from the ID card requirement.
- The certificate is generally issued for an unlimited period of time and without a photograph and contains all the data (except for eye color and height) that would also have been entered in the identity card.
- It is not possible to travel abroad with this certificate.
- If bank powers of attorney still need to be issued or notarized legal transactions (e.g. wills or property matters) need to be clarified, it is advisable to apply for a new ID card.
