Volltext	Retraining serves the purpose of professional reorientation, usually because you can no longer exercise your previous profession. Retraining takes place on the basis of a recognised training occupation and, just like vocational training, ends with a final examination, the retraining examination. Retraining examinations consist of a written examination part and a practical or oral examination part. Both parts of the exam usually take place on different days. The written part of the examination takes place nationwide on a fixed day at the same time. A retraining examination is carried out regionally by the authorities responsible for training in your profession (e.g. Chamber of Industry and Commerce) for all retrainees at the end of the retraining period. Before you can take the retraining exam, you must have completed the retraining. The competent authority therefore knows the period in which you will take your training examination. The admission and registration process is started by the responsible body by post or electronically.

The implementation of the retraining examination is organised by the regionally responsible body in consultation with the honorary examination board. With the announcement of the result by the examination board, your retraining relationship ends. If you do not pass the retraining exam, you have the option to retake the exam twice.

The examination fees due are paid by the training company or training provider with which you have concluded a retraining contract.
