Teaser	In order to be allowed to take on trainees, the competent authority must first check whether your company is suitable as a training center.
Volltext	A training center may only hire and train trainees if it is suitable for this in terms of type and facilities. If your company wishes to provide training for the first time, its suitability will be checked on site. As the manager of a training center, you must therefore register it for an aptitude test. The aptitude test will determine, among other things, whether there is a suitable ratio between the number of skilled workers in your training center and your trainees. It will also check whether you have the required professional skills. If your training center is unable to teach the required skills, it can still be deemed suitable. In this case, the skills must be taught outside the training center. You must agree this with your trainees in the training contract.

Kurztext

- Determining the suitability of training centers according to BBiG Registration
- A training center must be suitable in terms of type and facilities in order to be allowed to hire and train trainees
- There must be a suitable ratio between the number of skilled workers and trainees
- Training centers for some occupational groups, for example in agriculture or home economics, are only considered suitable as training centers after recognition by the competent authority under state law
- Responsible: usually IHK or Chamber of Agriculture
Exception: otherwise determined by the state or federal government

Exception: training has taken place under the responsibility of the public service or religious communities under public law

Ansprechpunkt

Contact the chamber responsible for your vocational training. This can be

- the Chamber of Industry and Commerce for vocational training in non-trade occupations,
- the Chamber of Agriculture for vocational training in agricultural and rural domestic professions

There are other competent bodies, for example for bodies in the area of public law and churches.

Contact the office responsible for vocational training. In Saxony-Anhalt this can be

- the Chamber of Industry and Commerce for vocational training in non-trade occupations,
- the State Administration Office for vocational training in agricultural and domestic professions.
