Sachverhalt

The benefits for assistance with living expenses include

- the flat-rate standard rate to ensure subsistence, for example for food, clothing or personal hygiene. People living in special housing generally receive the standard rate of standard needs level 2.
- Education and participation benefits for children and young people, for example for School trips, personal school supplies, school travel tickets, supplementary learning support, lunches in schools and daycare centers or club fees, music lessons and similar.
- Needs for accommodation and heating in the amount of your actual rent and heating costs (if appropriate).
- Persons in special forms of housing can claim expenses for housing above the adequacy limit set by the local authorities, provided this is necessary due to the special needs of the person with disabilities and the limit is not exceeded by more than 25 percent. No social assistance can be granted above this amount. However, integration assistance benefits may be considered.
- In exceptional cases, assumption of debts to:
Avoidance of homelessness, To secure your accommodation or To remedy a comparable emergency situation, e.g. debts to the energy supplier (usually on loan).
- Needs for your health and long-term care insurance contributions and, under certain conditions, for your pension provision (where appropriate).

In addition to your standard rate, you can receive benefits for additional living expenses if

- You have reached your retirement age and meet the requirements for a severely disabled person's pass with the mark "G" (walking disability),
- you have not yet reached retirement age but meet the requirements for a severely disabled person's pass with the "G" mark and are fully disabled under pension law,
- you are an expectant mother from the 13th week of pregnancy,
- you are a single parent,

- you have reached the age of 15, are disabled and receive assistance for appropriate education or training as part of integration assistance or
- you are dependent on a special diet due to a serious illness, which leads to higher costs than a "normal" diet,
- hot water is not produced by a central heating system but by a decentralized device installed in the home, special form of accommodation or other accommodation,
- you have expenses for the purchase or loan of school books or equivalent workbooks for a pupil due to the respective school regulations or school requirements (if there is no exemption for learning materials).

If you do not live alone, the Social Welfare Office will take into account the total income of the members of the household in order to determine your need for assistance. For this purpose, the income of all household members living together in the same home can be taken into account (provided they live together). This includes, for example

- Earned income,
- maintenance payments and
- pension income.

In special forms of housing, only the income of family members and partners is generally taken into account.

Child benefit paid for minors and any maintenance payments for a child are attributed to this child in order to cover their needs.

Certain assets are not considered to be protected assets, for example:

- Smaller amounts of cash (financial assets per adult: EUR 10,000, per child: EUR 500) or
- an appropriate house property.

These are not included in the calculation of benefits. Apart from a few exceptional cases, you will not receive benefits for past periods.
