because the training company is too far away from your parents' home.

- If you do not live with your parents, but in their vicinity, you can also receive the vocational training allowance if you are
 - are 18 years of age or older
 - are or were married or in a civil partnership,
 - live with at least one child
 - cannot be relegated to the home of your parents or one of your parents for serious social reasons.
- They are unable to raise the necessary funds to cover the Living costs, Travel costs to the training centre/accommodation/vocational school, Family travel home, Work clothes and Childcare costs.

Different regulations apply to people with disabilities. They can also receive funding if they

- Undertake vocational training within the framework of the Vocational Training Act (Berufsbildungsgesetz) or the Handicrafts Code (Handwerksordnung) in deviation from the training regulations for state-recognised training occupations or in special forms for disabled persons,
- extend the training beyond the scheduled end of the training course
- repeat the training in whole or in part if the nature or severity of the disability so requires or if permanent participation in working life would otherwise not be possible,
- live in the household of your parents or one of your parents.

Note: Even if you do not have German citizenship, you are generally entitled to vocational training assistance, unless

- You have a residence permit under the Asylum Act.
- You are considered "tolerated" and have been staying in Germany for less than 15 months without interruption on a permitted, approved or tolerated basis.
