Sachverhalt

payment for the transfer of his or her co-ownership share in a household object. The resulting mutual equalisation claims can be offset. This is to compensate for the fact that a transfer of household goods of equal value cannot take place.

The application for division of the common household effects is often filed in connection with a divorce and is heard together with other matrimonial matters in common proceedings. However, you can also file the application after the divorce. In this case, the application must be filed with the family court of the district court in whose district the common home of the spouses is located or, if this no longer exists due to the divorce proceedings being concluded, in whose district the respondent has his or her habitual residence.

Assignment to household goods

- It must be a household item.
- The household contents must belong to both spouses shared: Household goods acquired during the marriage for the household are deemed to be owned by the spouses for the purposes of distribution, unless the sole ownership of one spouse is established (the spouse claiming sole ownership must prove this in the proceedings).

Household goods do not include:

- Things intended exclusively as a capital investment (example: shares)
- Items for personal use (example: clothing)
- Household contents acquired by one spouse before the marriage or after the separation

Whether vehicles are considered "household goods" or "other property" depends mainly on how they are used:

- as household goods: use for predominantly family purposes
- as other property: predominant use by one spouse for commuting to work

Erforderliche Unterlagen	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• if applicable, proof of ownership such as invoices, purchase contracts; proof of use for professional purposes (example: vehicle)</li> <li>• List of all household effects (i.e. including those already distributed and those on which an agreement has been reached) as proof of amicable settlement</li> </ul>
Voraussetzungen	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• You are divorced from your spouse.</li> <li>• An amicable agreement on the division of household effects has failed.</li> <li>• Divorce proceedings have been concluded.</li> </ul>
Kosten	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Court and lawyer fees</li> </ul> Tip: The fees depend on the value of the proceedings as determined by the court. If there is no court decision or if the application is withdrawn, the fee is reduced.
Verfahrensablauf	In any case, it is advisable to consult a lawyer before handing in the application. In order to divide the property in accordance with the interests of the parties, all household goods and their value must be recorded, including those that have already been distributed and those in respect of which an agreement could be reached. The applicant must therefore list all household contents. The family court (Familiengericht) will first always try to reach an agreement between the spouses on the division of household goods and assets. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• If an amicable solution is not possible, the family court decides at its own discretion. In doing so, it must take into account the circumstances of the individual case and include the best interests of the children in its considerations.</li> <li>• If it is not possible to transfer household goods of equal value, an appropriate compensation payment may be determined.</li> </ul>
