appointed in another federal state or outside the Federal Republic of Germany, you can be sworn in in Saxony.

According to the provisions of the GDolmG and the SächsDolmG, the general swearing-in ends after five years. If you would like to continue working as a court interpreter, official interpreter, translator or sign language interpreter, you can apply to extend your general swearing-in authorisation for a further five years. Since current documents are required for the renewal application, it should be submitted at the earliest one year before expiry of the general swearing-in authorisation. If the renewal application is submitted before the expiry of the general swearing-in authorisation, the general swearing-in continues to exist until the decision on the extension has been made by the competent authority.

You can use the service of the Single Point of Contact for this procedure. He or she will guide you through the procedure, take care of correspondence with all the bodies responsible for your request and provide you with expert advice.

- Reliability
- Required expertise in German and the language to be sworn in

As a rule, you do not have the required reliability if you:

- have lost the ability to hold public office,
- are not only temporarily prevented from exercising the desired activity due to illness or addiction,
- are in financial difficulties (for example, if insolvency proceedings have been opened against your assets) or
- jeopardise the purposes of the official or court proceedings due to your financial circumstances.

You have the required specialist knowledge if you have a basic knowledge of the German legal language and have passed the interpreter examination, translator examination or sign language interpreter examination of a state or state-recognised examination office or another state or state-recognised examination for the profession of interpreter, translator or sign language interpreter in Germany or have passed an examination abroad that has been recognised as equivalent to such an examination by a competent German authority.

If you have obtained your degree abroad, you must apply to the Saxon State Ministry of Science, Culture and Tourism to have the equivalence of your degree recognised. The application will be sent to you with the application documents for general swearing-in by the Higher Regional Court of Dresden and must also be submitted there with all the necessary documents (specified in the application form).

The application will be submitted by the Higher Regional Court to the State Ministry of Science, Culture and Tourism for review.
