Modul

Sachverhalt

The court may set an early first hearing, which begins with a conciliation hearing. At the conciliation hearing, both parties can describe the case from their point of view. The aim is to reach an amicable agreement (settlement).

Note: The court can also suggest to the parties involved that out-of-court mediation be organised. Alternatively, it can refer the parties to a judge appointed for this purpose who is not authorised to make decisions (arbitrator) in an attempt to reach an amicable settlement. The arbitrator can use all methods of conflict resolution, including mediation.

Negotiation and judgement

If no amicable agreement can be reached, an oral hearing is held. Evidence such as documents and expert opinions may be used and witnesses and experts may be heard.

After the hearing of evidence and further statements by both parties, the judge announces the judgement orally. A separate date can also be set for the announcement of the judgement.

The written judgement with detailed reasons is sent to the parties.

Bearbeitungsdauer

Frist

- Appeal: within one month of notification of the judgement (with a minimum value in dispute of EUR 600.00 and express permission to appeal) The court of appeal is the higher regional court. Limitation period Before taking legal action, you should check whether the claim you wish to assert in court may already be time-barred. The statute of limitations runs for quite different periods of time, depending on the type of claim in question.
