You can also work in these professions without recognition, as they are not regulated in the Free State of Saxony. Nevertheless, recognition can be useful, since it allows for your professional qualifications to be honored appropriately by an employer. The procedure for determining equivalence is regulated in the Saxon Professional Qualification Determination Act (SächsBQFG).

For the determination of equivalence or a recognition, the State Office for Schools and Education checks on the basis of your evidence whether and to what extent your foreign qualification corresponds to the respective qualifications in the Free State of Saxony. Your relevant professional experience will be taken into account, as will other relevant qualifications, such as further education and training.

Attention: The equivalence of foreign professional qualifications in the so-called “green professions” to qualifications acquired at an agricultural technical college in the Free State of Saxony is determined by the Saxon State Ministry for Energy, Climate Protection, Environment, and Agriculture.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

- Written application with a tabular list of the training courses completed and the gainful employment pursued, in each case in German language
 - Proof of identity (passport, ID card, residence permit) in certified copy
 - Certified copies and German translations of school certificates and vocational training certificates obtained abroad
 - Proofs of relevant professional experience or other certificates of qualification, each in a certified copy as well as in a German translation
 - Declaration that no application for determination of equivalence has yet been filed
 - Declaration with suitable evidence that gainful employment corresponding to the professional qualification is intended in the Free State of Saxony (not applicable for applicants residing in a member state of the EU, the EEA or a state equal by convention, as well as for nationals of the aforementioned states).
