Volltext	You can apply for a no-parking zone for the duration of your move. This allows you to load and unload comfortably in front of your old and new flat. You are not allowed to reserve parking spaces on public roads without prior permission (for example by putting up rubbish bins). Other road users do not have to observe unauthorised reservations. Notice: Applies to the area in front of the planned loading and unloading zone if there is an absolute ban on stopping in the area in front of the planned loading and unloading zone, you must obtain a special permit to be allowed to park there. In areas with an area with a restricted no-parking zone, however, you may load and unload if this is done without delay.

Your application should contain the following information: • First and last name • new and old address • Telephone number • Purpose of the no-parking order (to carry out a move) • Date on which the no-parking order is to be put in place • Period during which the ban is to apply • Area in which the no-parking zone is to be set up Give as much information as possible (e.g. street and house number) and attach a sketch if necessary. • Length of the no-stopping zone (this is usually based on the length of the removal vehicle) Appropriate signage is required for the short-term establishment of a no-stopping zone. This can only be carried out by the responsible road authority (building yard or road maintenance department) or a suitably commissioned specialist company (e.g. removal company). The specialist company must provide proof of the required expertise upon request.
