Teaser	If you have adopted a foreign child, you can apply to have it notarised in the birth register in Germany, provided the child has acquired German citizenship as a result of the adoption.
Volltext	If you have adopted a foreign child, you can apply to have it notarised in the birth register in Germany, provided the child has acquired German citizenship as a result of the adoption. Important: However, you should clarify the recognition of such an adoption in Germany in advance. The foreign birth certificate remains valid after the foreign adoption of your adopted child.
Erforderliche Unterlagen	• all documents that were required for the adoption in the country of origin Note: You need foreign documents with over-certification by the competent foreign authority (apostille) or legalisation by the German diplomatic mission abroad.

Modul	Sachverhalt
Voraussetzungen	You have adopted a foreign child. Your adopted child has acquired German citizenship through the adoption.
Kosten	• for the notarisation of a birth abroad: EUR 160.00 • for updating the civil status register at the registry office of the place of residence: none
Verfahrensablauf	You must apply for the birth of your child born abroad to be notarised at the registry office of your place of residence. You can apply for a new birth certificate there at the same time. The registry office will enter the birth and you as the adoptive parents in the civil register. Please note: The registry office that notarises the birth of your child born abroad will automatically inform other registry offices.
