Volltext	The animals, plants or their products listed in Annex A of the EC Species Protection Regulation 338/97 may only be marketed if a licence has been issued. If you wish to use Annex A specimens for commercial purposes, you must therefore apply for a marketing authorisation. Marketing without authorisation is prohibited. This may be relevant, for example, for • live animals and plants , for example Greek tortoises, grey parrots • dead animals and plants , for example preparations, products (including powders), feather jewellery, fur coats, ivory products or furniture and instruments made from protected tree species You can find out whether your species is an Appendix A species in the Wisia database of the Federal Agency for Nature Conservation. You can find the species there on the left-hand side under "Search" and "Enter search term (species name)". If an "A" is entered in the "EC" column that appears, it is an Annex A species. Legally, "commercialise" does not only mean "sell". Marketing" also includes the following: buying, offering for sale(for example in classified adverts), acquiring for commercial purposes, displaying for commercial purposes(for example in shop windows as decoration), using for commercial purposes and selling, holding for sale, offering for sale or transporting for sale. "Marketing" is therefore very broadly defined. You can apply for a marketing licence online or by e-mail or post.
Erforderliche Unterlagen	You must complete the fields required for the application via MelBA-online or submit a completed application. Depending on the individual case, you may need to submit further documents, for example

- Proof of legal origin: Depending on the case, this could be:
 - Details of previous purchase, for example invoices, explanation of the trade route, accounts
 - EC import licence
 - Progeny confirmation from the nature conservation authority, breeding certificate from the breeder with details of the parent animals

- it is an antique or
- it concerns animals born and bred in captivity or artificially propagated plants.

In addition, there are other constellations in which a marketing authorisation can be granted.

Verfahrensablauf

You can apply for marketing authorisation from the competent authority in two ways:

1\ You can send the application online via the specialised procedure "MelBA-online".

In MelBA-online, you can - if necessary - register your animal (see service Livestock registration) and permanently view your stock of live animals that you have registered via MelBA-online.

You have the option of applying for a marketing licence based on the herd with just a few additional details. Otherwise, you can also apply for this authorisation without a herd entry. The system supports you in entering the data and, if available, uses the information you have already entered for the specimen.

You can also apply for the other services _submission certificate_ and _transport licence_ here \(link_\).

The system automatically sends your application to the authority responsible for you. You will also receive feedback on your application via the system. If the application is approved, the certificate will be sent by post.

To do this, register with [MelBA-online] (<https://melba-bw.de/>) and then log in: . MelBA-online is an independent specialised procedure outside the Baden-Württemberg service portal.

2\ On the website of the regional councils, you can download the [application form] (<https://rp.baden-wuerttemberg.de/themen/natur/artenschutz/internationaler-artenschutz/>) from the regional council responsible for you, fill it in and send it to the regional council.

Bearbeitungsdauer

Frist

The marketing authorisation must have been granted before the specimen/animal is marketed. The authorisation should therefore be applied for at least 4 weeks in advance.

Hinweise

You do not require a marketing licence for species listed in Annex X of Regulation (EC) No 865/2006.

Before purchasing a specimen of a protected species, you must ensure that you have evidence that proves the legality of the animal/specimen. If such a specimen is bought or sold, the original EU marketing authorisation must be handed over to the new owner together with the specimen.

The certificate is also required if own offspring of the species in question are marketed. For reasons of legal certainty, certificates should be applied for for offspring, even if no commercialisation is intended.

Animals with invalid, incorrect, incomplete or missing proof of legality (proof of origin) may neither be offered nor purchased.

If the legal origin of an animal or specimen cannot be clearly proven, the origin is doubtful. In such cases, the animal or specimen may be confiscated or permanently confiscated (taken away). The costs of accommodation are then borne by the person from whom the specimen was confiscated.

A violation of the marketing ban can be punished as an administrative offence or even prosecuted.
