Volltext	Dismissal by the employer is not permitted during pregnancy and up to four months after the birth. This also applies up to four months after a miscarriage after the twelfth week of pregnancy. The employer must have been aware of the pregnancy, the miscarriage after the 12th week of pregnancy or the birth at the time of termination or must have been informed within two weeks of receipt of the notice of termination. Exceeding this deadline is harmless if it is due to a reason for which the woman is not responsible and the notification is made without delay. In special cases, however, the competent authority (in Baden-Württemberg the regional councils) may, in accordance with Section 17 (2) of the Maternity Protection Act (MuSchG), declare the termination of the employment relationship of a woman who is subject to this special protection against dismissal to be permissible by way of exception. However, the reasons for the dismissal must not be related to the pregnancy, the miscarriage or the birth of the child. Special grounds for dismissal could be, for example <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• that the company is insolvent or</li> <li>• that the business is partially shut down or</li> </ul>

Verfahrensablauf	The prohibitions on dismissal under Section 17 (1) MuSchG and Section 18 of the Federal Parental Allowance and Parental Leave Act (BEEG) exist side by side. If the requirements of Section 17 MuSchG and Section 18 BEEG coincide, the employer must apply for a declaration of admissibility of the dismissal under both legal provisions in order to be able to effectively terminate the employment relationship. The application must make it clear under which provision the employer is seeking a declaration of admissibility.
Bearbeitungsdauer	The processing time depends on the complexity of the application and can take considerably longer in individual cases.
