After the instruction - both in person and online - you will be issued with a certificate of attendance. After the instruction, you must declare in writing that you are not aware of any facts that would prohibit you from working. You will then receive the certificate of attendance. If there is a suspicion that you cannot obtain the certificate, for example in the case of a food-borne illness, you will only receive the certificate once a doctor has ruled out the suspicion of illness on the basis of an examination. The content of the certificate is that you have been instructed about your legal obligations, in particular about which infectious disease you are prohibited from working in the food sector.
Bearbeitungsdauer
Frist	You may only commence activities in the area of food preparation, food sales or catering if you have the certificate. This certificate must not be older than three months when you first start working. Your employer must also instruct you about the activity bans and the obligation after you start work and every two years thereafter. The certificate and the most recent documentation of the instruction must be kept by the employer.
