Teaser	In the event of a current threat to public safety from animals, either the police (110) or the integrated regional control centers (112) must be informed immediately. Otherwise, the responsible regulatory authority must be informed.
Volltext	If animals (domestic or wild) are currently endangering public safety, in particular people, other animals or road safety, you should immediately inform either the police by calling 110 or the integrated regional control centers by calling 112. These services will inform the relevant authorities if necessary or remove the danger themselves. If a dog bite incident has occurred, a dog has jumped at a person in a dangerous manner or has caused a hazard by suddenly tearing itself loose (e.g. in road traffic), a report should be made immediately to the responsible regulatory authority or the police.
