may seek advice from the Land electoral administration with regard to compliance with formal requirements.

Among other things, 100,000 signatures of persons entitled to vote in state elections must be collected for the referendum to be approved. The collection of the required signatures is the responsibility of the representatives of the referendum petition (free signature collection) and must be carried out on signature lists (sample according to Annex 1 of the Ordinance on the Implementation of the VaG M-V). The state parliament must be notified in writing of the start of the free collection of signatures, enclosing the draft bill. In the case of a free collection of signatures, the signatures must be submitted within five months of its commencement, otherwise within the last six months prior to receipt of the application for approval by the Landtag. Only eligible voters from MV may sign.

In the case of a petition for a referendum in accordance with option a), a display of signature lists (sample in accordance with Annex 2 of the Ordinance on the Implementation of the VaG M-V) may also be requested at the municipal authorities for a period of two months.

Once the collection of signatures has been completed, the representatives of the referendum petition submit the application for approval of the referendum petition to the President of the Landtag.

The application must include the following

1. an elaborated, reasoned draft bill,
2. 100,000 signatures of persons eligible to vote in the Landtag election,
3. the names and addresses of at least three persons representing the petition for a referendum.

The President of the Landtag then asks the Land electoral administration to examine the formal requirements for admission.

Modul

Sachverhalt

Within three months of receipt of the application for approval of the petition for a referendum by the Land parliament, the Land electoral administration checks whether the formal requirements for admissibility have been met, in particular whether the number of 100,000 valid signatures has been reached. The state electoral administration then informs the representatives of the referendum petition of the decision on admissibility.

If the petition for a referendum is approved, the state parliament discusses the draft bill at its next possible session. If parliament rejects the bill, a referendum is held on the bill. Those entitled to vote can vote "yes" or "no" on the bill. The procedure corresponds to that of an election. The bill is passed if it

- it receives a majority of the valid votes cast and
- in the case of simple laws, this majority consists of at least a quarter of all of all those entitled to vote.

In the case of a constitutional amendment

- two thirds of all votes cast and
- at least half of all those entitled to vote must have voted in favor.

electoral administration with regard to compliance with formal requirements.

The representatives of the referendum petition shall notify the President of the Landtag in writing of the start of the free collection of signatures and enclose the draft bill. The President of the Landtag shall immediately forward the notification to the Land electoral administration.

Once the collection of signatures has been completed, the representatives of the referendum petition submit the application for approval of the referendum petition to the President of the Landtag.

The President of the Landtag then asks the Land electoral administration to examine the formal requirements for approval.

Bearbeitungsdauer

The Land electoral administration shall decide on the admissibility of the petition for a referendum within three months. If the petition for a referendum is admissible, the President of the Landtag shall arrange for it to be dealt with immediately upon receipt at the next possible Landtag session in accordance with the Landtag's rules of procedure. If the Landtag adopts the requested bill essentially unchanged within six months, a vote on the petition for a referendum (referendum) pursuant to Article 60 of the Land Constitution is not required.

Frist

- The supporting signature for a free collection of signatures for a referendum petition must be provided within five months of its commencement, otherwise within the last six months prior to receipt of the application for approval of the referendum petition by the Land parliament.
- The Land electoral administration shall decide on the admissibility of the petition for a referendum within three months of receipt of the application for registration by Parliament.
- The President of the Landtag shall arrange for the approved referendum petition to be dealt with immediately upon receipt at the next possible Landtag session in accordance with the rules of procedure of the Landtag.
- If the Landtag adopts
