status), proof of training that is required in an EU/EEA country/Switzerland (regulated profession) is sufficient to obtain permission to use the professional title "interior designer" in that country; if the profession is not regulated in the country of origin, the guarantee of knowledge provided by the regulation is replaced by proof of one year's professional experience or by any regulated training provided. If the foreign professional qualification differs significantly from the registration requirements applicable to graduates in interior design from a German university, the Chamber of Architects will impose compensatory measures (aptitude test, adaptation course).

In the case of (non-equivalent) third-country nationals, the recognition of their training certificates in interior design requires that their equivalence with the corresponding German qualification (reference qualification) be established beforehand. If there are significant differences, the Chamber of Architects will impose compensatory measures (aptitude test, adaptation course).

Qualifications from third countries

The prerequisite for the recognition of training certificates in interior design issued in third countries is that their equivalence with the corresponding German qualification (reference qualification) is established beforehand. If there are significant differences, the Chamber of Architects will impose compensatory measures (aptitude test, adaptation course).
