Volltext	With the European Monument Protection Year in 1975, it became generally accepted that the past can only have a future if the built testimonies are preserved. The cities and towns that have developed over the course of history provide us and future generations with opportunities for individual development and identification. They are a piece of home. Preserving our cultural heritage as part of history is a task for the state. This also means, that it intervenes in the tasks of monument protection in a formative way. The state fulfills its responsibility by protecting monuments from inappropriate changes that destroy their historical value. It grants the owner of the monument financial assistance and advises him on proper conservation.

Kurztext	• If you have any questions about monument protection or funding for the maintenance of monuments, you must contact the relevant authority. • As a rule, the lower monument protection authority is responsible for monument protection and therefore the point of contact for applications for changes to monuments. You can find this at the administration of your district or your independent or large district town. • In Thuringia, the State Office for the Preservation of Monuments and Archaeology is responsible for the technical assessment and advice as well as the allocation of monument funding from the state.
