Volltext	Road haulage is the commercial or paid transportation of goods with motor vehicles that have a permissible total weight of more than 3.5 tons, including trailers. Commercial road haulage generally requires a permit. The so-called "own-account transport", i.e. road haulage for a company's own purposes under certain conditions, does not require a permit. However, your company must be registered with the Federal Office for Goods Transport. If the vehicles are only used throughout Germany, you require a permit for commercial road haulage (in accordance with Section 3 of the Road Haulage Act). For cross-border journeys within the European Union, the European Economic Area (EEA)* and Switzerland, you need a Community license (EU license) and, if applicable, a driver's certificate for nationals of a third country. Freight transport in cross-border traffic with vehicles of more than 2.5 t to 3.5 t gross vehicle weight also requires proof of access to the profession.

You can also use the Community license for transport within Germany and the EEA states ("cabotage transport").

For commercial road haulage with countries outside the European Economic Area, in addition to the national permit for the German part of the route (permit for commercial road haulage or Community license), you need bilateral permits or so-called CEMT permits for parts of the route in third countries.

The permit for commercial road haulage and the Community license can be issued for a limited period, subject to conditions or with conditions. The national permit and the Community license can be issued for a period of validity of up to 10 years.

Hinweise

Road haulage for the company's own purposes does not require a permit if the following conditions are met:

- the transported goods must be owned by the company or sold, purchased, leased, rented, manufactured, produced, extracted, processed or repaired by the company.
- the purpose of the transportation must be to deliver the goods to the company, to dispatch them from the company, to transport them within the company or for the company's own use outside the company.
- the motor vehicles used for the transportation must always be driven by the company's own staff.
- The transportation may only be an ancillary activity within the scope of the company's overall activity.

If road haulage for the company's own purposes does not require a permit, the company operating road haulage is obliged to register its business with the Federal Office for Goods Transport before the first transport operation begins.

The Federal Office for Goods Transport is responsible for issuing the bilateral permit or a so-called CEMT permit for cross-border commercial road haulage and removal traffic in the community of CEMT member states (over 30 states in Europe).
