warning with a warning fine, a fine procedure will be initiated against you.

If no formal hearing has taken place on the spot, you will first receive a form from the fining authority about the facts of the case you are accused of, the so-called hearing form. You are then the person affected by the fine proceedings. You can comment on the accusation against you, but you do not have to. However, you are always obliged to provide complete and correct information about yourself in writing and to return the hearing form to the fining authority. You will be given a deadline for returning the form.

The fining authority will then decide whether to discontinue the fine proceedings or issue a fine notice against you. If a fine notice is issued and you agree with it, there is a payment deadline of two weeks after the notice becomes legally binding. If you do not agree, you can lodge an objection to the fine notice with the fining authority that issued it within two weeks of notification. If you do not do this, the fine will become legally binding after the two weeks have expired. If no payment is made on time after the fine becomes legally binding, the fine notice is enforceable.

Points

For certain traffic violations (e.g. exceeding the speed limit or violating the 0.5 per mille limit), the catalog of fines provides for the entry of one or more points in addition to the fine.

Driving ban

For certain traffic offenses, in addition to the fine and points, the catalog of fines also provides for a ban on driving motor vehicles of any kind (including mopeds). The driving ban can be imposed by the fining authority for a period of one, two or three months. If you still drive a motor vehicle, you are liable to prosecution for driving without a license (§ 21 StVG).
