Volltext	Consent to the adoption of a child by the parents is a legal requirement for adoption. In the case of newborns, consent may not be given until the child is eight weeks old. If the parents are not married and have not made a joint declaration of custody, then the consent of the legal father to the adoption is possible before the birth of the child. If, on the other hand, the father has filed an application for transfer of custody, this application must be decided before the adoption of the child.
