The citizenship card is binding proof of German citizenship for all authorities.

Volltext

The possession of German citizenship is proven - binding for all authorities - by a citizenship card, which is issued by the citizenship authority on application as part of a special determination procedure.

Prerequisites

A citizenship card can only be issued if the existence of German citizenship has been established. For this purpose, the citizenship authority checks

- whether and how you acquired German citizenship,
- whether you have lost your German citizenship and, if so, by what means.

In addition to your personal details, information about the persons from whom you derive your citizenship is therefore also required. Please seek advice on this from the authorities.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

In order to establish the existence of German citizenship, it is necessary, but also sufficient, if it can be proven with sufficient probability by documents, extracts from the population registers or other written evidence that you have acquired German citizenship and have not lost it again.

The following documents may be useful:

- Documents relating to parentage and marital status: birth certificates, marriage certificates;
- Documents on the acquisition of German citizenship: naturalization certificates, conferral certificates, admission certificates, certificates/documents on the acquisition of German citizenship by declaration or

- Documents concerning the acquisition of legal status as a German without German citizenship: expellee identity cards, late repatriate certificates, (old) refugee identity cards, registration certificates, registration confirmations or registration certificates;

- Documents concerning possession of German citizenship or legal status as a German: proof of citizenship, certificates of origin, documents/ID cards concerning legal status as a German, passports, identity cards and other identification documents (including old ones), extracts from (former) family registers, lists of citizens or citizen directories, documents concerning military service or employment as a civil servant, registration confirmations, registration certificates, documents concerning authorization to retain German citizenship.

Bring what you have with you, the citizenship authority will help you to look through it.
