are obliged to provide personnel for the management of guardianships.

The management of a guardianship itself can be transferred to a specific person, an association or a youth welfare office. The district court decides who is entrusted with the management of the guardianship.

The actual management of a guardianship takes place within the framework of private law. The persons who lead the guardianship fulfil all tasks for their area of responsibility that would have to be performed by the parents without this guardianship.

If a guardianship is managed by a youth welfare office, a person employed there is commissioned accordingly. The tasks associated with the guardianship are carried out by this person on his own responsibility.

There are more far-reaching provisions in the area of guardianship, which cannot be described in detail here due to their complexity.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

No documents are required.

Voraussetzungen

A guardianship is not a benefit that is applied for in the strict sense. A guardianship is established when the district court becomes aware that a guardianship is required.

This may be the case, inter alia, where:

- point out to parents with custody that they are overwhelmed with a situation,
- an authority indicates that a guardianship appears necessary,
- it is established in court proceedings that a guardianship must be established.

An indispensable prerequisite for the establishment of a guardianship is that both parents cannot exercise parental authority for a specifically definable area and that both parents have been deprived of parental
