Teaser	If you wish to work commercially as a self-employed fee-based financial investment advisor, you need a license to do so.
Volltext	As a fee-based financial investment advisor, you advise on financial products for which you receive a fee from the client. You are independent of the product provider and therefore may not receive any commissions or other benefits from the provider of the financial products. If, on the other hand, you work on a commission-based basis, you must apply for a license as a financial investment broker instead. As a fee-based financial investment advisor, you are restricted to certain financial products by a so-called exemption from the German Banking Act and the German Securities Institutions Act. limited. The license covers (optionally) three product categories: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Units or shares in domestic open-ended investment funds • open-ended EU investment funds or open-ended foreign investment funds that may be distributed in

Permission may be granted to a natural person or a legal entity. Partnerships (commercial partnerships) such as the civil law partnership (GbR), the general partnership (OHG) or the commercial partnership (OHG) or the limited partnership (KG) cannot be granted permission. In these cases, each managing partner must apply for their own permit.

In addition to obtaining a license, you must also be entered in the register of intermediaries immediately after commencing your activities.

Your license may be restricted in terms of content or subject to conditions if this is necessary to protect the general public or investors.

You cannot act as a financial investment broker at the same time.
