Teaser	Once a building has been completed, it must be officially surveyed and the result of the survey entered in the official record of the real estate cadastre.
Volltext	In the real estate register, parcels of land are recorded with their boundaries and buildings with their ground plan. This also includes structures that characterize the cityscape or landscape, such as wind turbines or storage tanks. In addition to the location and floor plan, further information on the building is collected. For example, the property records are required as a data basis for private legal transactions and for planning purposes. Authorities and organizations with security tasks use the data in the interests of citizens. In many cases, a property or building can only be mortgaged if the building is recorded in the real estate register. The real estate cadastre and its buildings are also indispensable when selling a property and as a data basis for navigation systems. According to the Lower Saxony Law on Official Surveying(NVermG), landowners and persons with hereditary building rights are obliged to independently apply for their buildings to be surveyed and entered in the real estate cadastre, i.e. to submit an application for a building survey. As not all obligated persons are aware of this obligation, the legislator has provided that the update can also be initiated ex officio at the expense of the property owners or persons with hereditary building rights.

Kosten

The surveying of buildings and entry in the real estate register is subject to a fee. The fees are based on the cost regulations for official surveying(KOVerM). These cost regulations are binding for the regional directorates and for the publicly appointed surveyors.

The fees are based on the construction value of the building.

For example, the fee for surveying and registering a detached house (construction value up to €350,000) is currently around €1,247.

Verfahrensablauf

Bearbeitungsdauer

The surveying offices usually collect several building surveying orders in one area in order to be able to complete them together as economically as possible in the field. The entire process can therefore take several months. However, urgent building surveys are generally completed within a few weeks. The urgency must therefore be noted on the application.

Frist

The official procedure for updating the building survey is subject to a deadline of one month. If no application has been submitted by the deadline, the building survey must be arranged by the surveying and land registry authority.
