	examination. You must have statutory health insurance or be exempt from statutory health insurance. You will have to pay a semester fee (and, if applicable, long-term tuition fees).
Kosten	The semester fee must be paid for enrollment. The amount of the fee differs from university to university and is determined anew every semester. It depends on various factors. The largest component is usually a semester ticket, if one is offered by the respective university. Other components are, for example, contributions to the Studentenwerk, the student body and the administrative cost contribution. Payment must be made within a deadline set by the university. If the student's study credit is used up, additional long-term tuition fees must be paid per semester. In this case, a fee notice will be issued. Depending on age, course of study and duration of study, additional fees may apply.
