Teaser	Citizens, companies, institutions, lawyers or authorities can submit a request for information from the trade register if they can prove a legitimate interest.
Volltext	The trade register is kept by the local regulatory authorities (district-free city, large district-affiliated city, municipality, district administration) and contains all companies and businesses registered in accordance with the Trade Code (GewO) that have their registered office in the respective municipality. Public bodies and private individuals can request an extract from the trade register. The consent of the data subject is not required for the disclosure of his or her data. The name of the company or owner, the business address and the activity indicated are generally accessible. A legal interest must be proven for an extended trade register information that goes beyond this (e.g. to assert legal claims; lending to the trader). There is no legal entitlement of third parties to the disclosure of the data. The Trade Register is not a public register (such as the Commercial, Cooperative or Association Register). The provision of information is at the discretion of the competent authority. The information from the trade register corresponds to what was reported to the trade registration office up to the time the information was provided. The authority assumes no liability for the correctness and completeness of the information. As a matter of principle, no information is provided about deregistered companies. This means that in the case of requests for information that are linked to a credible interest (e.g. in the case of legal proceedings,
