Teaser	Competence tests, certificates of competence and certificates of proficiency ensure that the requirements of animal welfare legislation are complied with when keeping, slaughtering and transporting animals.
Volltext	As part of the granting of permits for animal husbandry and activities with animals subject to licensing in accordance with Section 11 of the Animal Welfare Act, the applicant must appoint a responsible person. If the responsible person does not have a corresponding professional qualification or proof of previous professional or other contact with animals, their expertise is verified by means of an expert interview with the district administrative authority. The content of the technical interview depends on the intended activity, the type of animal husbandry, the animal species, etc. For the transportation of agricultural livestock and horses, a certificate of competence is required for drivers and supervisors of an animal transport if the transportation is carried out in connection with an economic activity. If no corresponding professional qualification was obtained after 05.01.2007, the certificate of competence can be issued by the district administrative authority after training and passing an examination (§ 4 Animal Welfare Transport Ordinance). The certificate of competence is valid throughout the European Union.

A certificate of competence is required for the slaughtering of animals by companies; this applies to all activities in connection with slaughtering. The responsible ministry authorizes competent institutions to carry out appropriate training and examinations.

After passing the examination, the district administrative authority issues the certificate of competence. Certificates of competence in accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1099/2009 on the protection of animals at the time of slaughter are valid throughout the European Union.

For the stunning of male pigs under eight days old (piglets) for the purpose of castration with isoflurane, persons other than veterinarians require a certificate of competence. The certificate of competence is issued by the competent authority upon application, provided that the necessary requirements are met (including successful participation in a training course and examination).

A veterinarian must also periodically check the practical skills required to carry out anaesthesia during piglet castration.
