Teaser	State recognition as a farrier can be applied for from the competent authority if proof of successful completion of the farriery examination is presented.
Volltext	A farrier, officially called a farrier in Germany, is a specialist in the care (trimming) and shoeing of animal hooves with horseshoes or other materials. He also traditionally makes the horseshoes and horseshoe nails himself in the forging process or adapts the horseshoes to the shape of the hoof. The work also includes the treatment of injured and diseased hooves. Anyone wishing to learn the profession of farrier needs to have completed vocational training. The training is structured as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Introductory course: four weeks • Practical work in farriery: at least 24 months

Modul

Sachverhalt

- Preparatory course: four months
- Farriery examination: after the preparatory course

Preparatory course

The preparatory course consists of a practical and a theoretical part. The recognized state farriery school Schwaiganger conducts a preparatory course twice a year (for dates see "Further links").

Registration for participation in a preparatory course at the state farriery school Schwaiganger can take place during the period of practical work (the majority of the practical work should already have been completed.) The application for participation in the course must be made in writing (informally). Confirmation of membership of a health insurance fund must be submitted for the duration of the course.

Examination content of the farriery examination

- Performance of hot shoeing with irons
- Performing shoeing with alternative hoof protection
- Carrying out bare hoof care
- Making a hoof or cloven hoof iron
- Preparation of a case report followed by a technical discussion
- Written examination paper with possible supplementary oral examination

The examination tasks should be carried out in accordance with the principle of complete action. The acquisition of appropriate knowledge and skills must take place during practical work. Attendance at the farriery school serves to deepen and consolidate knowledge and skills. For the case report, at least two interesting cases should be documented in writing and with pictures during the practical activity.
