Teaser	The probate court can also issue a so-called joint minimum share certificate for several heirs. Each co-heir can apply for a joint minimum share certificate.
Volltext	When a testator dies, he usually leaves not just one heir, but several heirs. Upon inheritance, these enter the so-called community of heirs. In principle, every individual co-heir can apply for a certificate of inheritance with which they can identify themselves as the legal heir to third parties. However, if the community of heirs wants to act together and act towards banks, insurers and the land registry office, a joint certificate of inheritance is often required. A minimum partial inheritance certificate can be applied for if not all heirs have been determined yet, for example because they still need to be identified. At the same time, however, it is clear what proportion of the inherited assets (for example 1/2 or 1/3) the heir who submits the inheritance certificate application will receive at least. The minimum inheritance certificate then only shows this inheritance quota.

There are co-heirs and they would like to apply for a joint inheritance certificate. However, not all co-heirs are available to apply. Since there are other heirs who have not yet been identified, the established heirs can (only) be shown a minimum inheritance share of the inherited assets in the inheritance certificate.

Kosten

The amount of the fees depends on the value of the estate (inherited assets) after deducting the debts of the testator (deceased person). For example, the issuing of a certificate of inheritance by the probate court costs: for an estate value of EUR 30,000 EUR 125.00 for an estate value of EUR 100,000 EUR 273.00

Hinweise

Only one of the co-heirs must submit the application for a certificate of inheritance. To prove your status as an heir in the case of legal succession (if there is no will or inheritance contract), you must submit various documents. This involves documenting all events in your family that are relevant to inheritance law and that relate to the testator. These can include marriage, divorce, births of children, deaths, renunciations of inheritance and the like. If you are not sure which documents you must submit, you can ask the responsible probate court. Please note: The probate court does not provide legal advice. Please contact the persons authorized to provide legal advice. These are lawyers or notaries. Affordable legal advice for people with low incomes is provided by the Public Legal Advice (ÖRA).

certificate immediately. The local court issues a decision stating that it considers the facts necessary to justify the application for a certificate of inheritance to have been established. The parties then have the opportunity, in accordance with Sections 58 and 63 FamFG, to lodge an appeal against this decision within a period of one month. The certificate of inheritance will only be issued if, after the expiry of the one-month period, no one has lodged an appeal against the decision of the probate court and the decision has thus become final and binding. In addition, according to Section 59 FamFG, a person who was unable to convince the probate court with his or her arguments in the inheritance certificate procedure and whose rights are thereby impaired can file an appeal. Challenge By applying for the certificate of inheritance, the inheritance is automatically considered accepted – renouncing the inheritance is then no longer possible. Heirs can then only prevent the inheritance by contesting the acceptance of the inheritance. However, a reason must be provided that justifies the contestation (for example, certain errors). It is recommended that you seek legal advice from a lawyer. The district court is not permitted to provide legal advice. In the case of partial and joint inheritance certificates, each heir within the community of heirs is entitled to contest the certificate.

Kurztext

Apply for a community minimum share certificate The certificate of inheritance is an official certificate issued by the probate court that provides information about the inheritance rights of certain people. If there are co-heirs, they can apply to the probate court for a joint partial inheritance certificate. If this is not applied for for everyone, it is only a joint partial inheritance certificate. The minimum inheritance certificate determines the minimum inheritance quota if additional heirs have not yet been determined. The community minimum share certificate can be issued based on a will or according to legal succession.
