Teaser	The probate court can also issue a so-called joint partial inheritance certificate for several heirs. Any co-heir can apply for a joint partial inheritance certificate. This can be limited if parts of the estate are located abroad.
Volltext	When a testator dies, he usually leaves behind not just one heir, but several. These become part of the so-called community of heirs when the inheritance takes place. Only after the inheritance has been settled is the estate divided among the individual heirs in accordance with the agreements made. In principle, each individual co-heir can apply for a certificate of inheritance with which he can identify himself as the rightful heir to third parties. However, if the community of heirs wants to appear together and act in front of banks, insurers and the land registry, a joint certificate of inheritance is often necessary. The joint partial inheritance certificate is issued for the inheritance rights of several but not all co-heirs upon application by one co-heir, for example if one co-heir has emigrated and is therefore unreachable. A certificate of inheritance limited to certain items in Germany (objectively limited certificate of inheritance) can be issued by the probate court upon application if the estate (inherited assets) also includes items located abroad. A materially limited certificate of inheritance should be applied for if this speeds up the process for issuing the certificate of inheritance (for example, because no foreign inheritance law needs to be determined), or because the certificate of inheritance is not needed abroad and costs can be saved by restricting it.

Erforderliche Unterlagen

Your official photo ID (ID card or passport) Death certificate of the testator (deceased person) Documents to document your status as legal heir, for example: Family register Marriage certificates of the testator Birth certificates of the testator's children and grandchildren Adoption documents Divorce decrees with legal effect Proof why certain people who would actually be (co-)heirs are not heirs, for example: Death certificates of children and grandchildren or spouses of the testator Declarations of renunciation of inheritance Inheritance waivers Information about whether there is a court case regarding your inheritance law If applicable, wills or inheritance contracts For married couples, proof of matrimonial property regime For registered civil partnerships, proof of assets If the testator himself had no children, the following must be submitted: Birth certificate of the testator If applicable, death certificates of the testator's parents If applicable, birth certificates of the testator's siblings If applicable, death certificates of the testator's siblings If applicable, birth certificates of the testator's nieces and nephews In addition, marriage certificates must be submitted by heirs if their last name has changed as a result of the marriage.

Voraussetzungen

There are co-heirs and they would like to apply for a joint inheritance certificate. However, not all co-heirs are available to apply. Estate items are located both in Germany and abroad.

Kosten

The amount of the fees depends on the value of the estate (inherited assets) after deducting the debts of the testator (deceased person). For example, the issuing of a certificate of inheritance by the probate court costs: for an estate value of EUR 30,000 EUR 125.00 for an estate value of EUR 100,000 EUR 273.00 for an estate value of EUR 500,000 EUR 935.00 In addition, you must pay fees of the same amount for the certification of an affidavit at the probate court or at a notary public In addition, there may be writing expenses and sales tax Applicants residing abroad may be required to pay an advance on costs.

Verfahrensablauf

You apply for a joint minimum share inheritance certificate at the responsible probate court (usually the court in whose district the deceased last lived): Submit an application for a certificate of inheritance To do so, use the online service "Make an appointment to submit an application for a certificate of inheritance" . Using the online service, you can submit an application for an appointment to submit an application for a certificate of inheritance to the probate court responsible for you. Alternatively, you can also use the form provided. Attach all required documents. The application for a certificate of inheritance must only be submitted by one co-heir. You can also submit the application through an authorized person, such as a notary or a lawyer, or have it recorded in court. The district court will contact you to arrange an appointment. Make a personal sworn statement at the appointment before the district court or before a notary. This confirms that you are not aware of anything that would contradict the accuracy of the information you provided in the application for a certificate of inheritance. This is not necessary if the district court waives it. If a notary certifies the declaration under oath, this person can at the same time certify the application for a certificate of inheritance. After you have applied for the certificate of inheritance, the local court will check your eligibility and issue the certificate of inheritance.

Hinweise	Only one of the co-heirs must submit the application for a certificate of inheritance. To prove your status as an heir in the case of legal succession (if there is no will or inheritance contract), you must submit various documents. This involves documenting all events in your family that are relevant to inheritance law and that relate to the testator. These can include marriage, divorce, births of children, deaths, renunciations of inheritance and the like. If you are not sure which documents you must submit, you can ask the responsible probate court. Please note: The probate court does not provide legal advice. Please contact the persons authorized to provide legal advice. These are lawyers or notaries. The Public Legal Advice Service (ÖRA) offers low-cost legal advice for people with low incomes.

Rechtsbehelf

Complaint If there are conflicting interests in the inheritance certificate procedure before the probate court, the probate court may not issue the inheritance certificate immediately. The district court issues a decision stating that it considers the facts necessary to substantiate the application for a certificate of inheritance to have been established. The parties then have the opportunity, in accordance with Sections 58 and 63 FamFG, to lodge an appeal against this decision within a period of one month. The certificate of inheritance will only be issued if, after the expiry of the one-month period, no one has lodged an appeal against the decision of the probate court and the decision has thus become final and binding. In addition, according to Section 59 FamFG, a person who was unable to convince the probate court with his or her arguments in the inheritance certificate procedure and whose rights are thereby impaired can file an appeal. Challenge By applying for the certificate of inheritance, the inheritance is automatically considered accepted – renouncing the inheritance is then no longer possible. Heirs can then only prevent the inheritance by contesting the acceptance of the inheritance. However, a reason must be proven that justifies the contest (for example, certain errors). It is recommended that you seek legal advice from a lawyer. The district court is not permitted to provide legal advice. In the case of partial and joint inheritance certificates, each heir within the community of heirs is entitled to contest the certificate.

Kurztext

Apply for a limited communal partial inheritance certificate If there are co-heirs, they can apply to the probate court for a joint inheritance certificate. If this is not applied for for everyone, it is only a joint partial inheritance certificate. The certificate of inheritance is an official certificate issued by the probate court that
