situation and pay off your debts in order to improve the conditions for your professional integration.

- Psychosocial support is available if you need support with mental health problems or crisis situations so that your employability can be stabilized again.
- Addiction counseling offers you support regardless of the type or severity of your addiction. This can be general advice about addiction risks, addictive substances or dependency. You can also be supported in finding further support services.

You can also get support for caring for relatives at home, looking after underage children or children with disabilities if these personal obligations prevent you from finding work. For example, if you are looking after children or relatives at home, the responsible body can organize support from third parties so that you can work.
