Teaser	Have you, your household or your company been asked to participate in an official statistics survey? Here you will find further information on how to proceed and on official statistics surveys in general.
Volltext	The range of topics covered by official statistics is broad: Population, social affairs, the economy, finance and the environment are just some of the overarching topics for which data is regularly collected. The surveys are carried out in different ways. The cooperation of a large number of institutions, companies and individuals is required. They are asked to participate in writing. Participation in official statistics surveys is usually not voluntary, but required by law. The effort for respondents is kept to a minimum: Modern online reporting procedures help to reduce the burden on respondents and ensure data processing without media discontinuity. More detailed information on the online survey can be found on the website of the Bremen State Statistical Office. You will find the link under "Further information".
