Teaser	Does your child have problems in everyday life or in their development? As a parent, do you need support in raising your child? Then raising your child in a day group may be a possible solution.
Volltext	Education in a day group is particularly suitable for children from school age who show behavioral problems or developmental delays. This is a type of educational support service. It may also be suitable for young adults in accordance with §41 SGB VIII. A day group is what is known as partial inpatient help. Your child will be looked after in a day group during the week after school. Afterwards, however, they can stay with their family and thus in their familiar surroundings. Education in a day group means • Your child receives therapeutic and educational care • It receives support with integration into school and the social environment • It learns how to deal with other children and conflicts in a group • It learns how to organize its everyday life and receives suggestions for meaningful leisure activities. • Parents are intensively involved, for example through counseling sessions, parents' evenings or parent-child meetings. The aims of education in a day group are • to strengthen the child • to strengthen the parents • to strengthen the parent-child relationship • Keeping the child in the family
