Teaser	You have had a child, are not married to the child's father and would like to share custody? To do so, you must make a declaration that you wish to share parental custody of the child. You can find out more about this here.
Volltext	If you are not married to each other as parents of a joint child, only the mother has custody. If you would like to have joint custody, both parents must declare this to the youth welfare office or a notary and have it notarized. You can make the declaration of custody even if your child has not yet been born but has already been conceived. It is also possible and sensible to make a joint declaration of custody after the birth if you are not getting married and do not wish to seek a court ruling on custody. After submitting joint declarations of custody, parental custody can only be changed by a decision of the family court.
